ateliervierkant – Collection 2022

For the top terraces of the Bohemia Hotel on Playa del Inglés, Tenerife, Spanish landscape architect Luis Vallejo selected A80 vases in black anthracite planted with palm trees.

In and around the Filosofia, the bar at Barcelona's Sofia Hotel, groups of A vases at different heights and in various grey shades, planted with Myrtus communis, Westringia fruticosa, Verbena bonariensis, Metrosideros excelsa and Acer campestre, create intimate spaces on the terrace for guests enjoying a coffee in the early morning sunlight. While in London's St Pancras urban development, larger A80 and A120 models are put along Stable Street, to create a green walk way from Granary to Lewis Cubitt Square.

A120

For King's Cross, Dan Pearson landscape architects positioned small groups of A planters a long Stable Street in order to create islands that guideline the visitor from one shop or restaurant to another. The more attractive the different areas are, the bigger the interaction between people becomes.

A120 and A80 vessels along the Laagte Kadijk, in front of former brewery Stout & Co, transformed into Delva Landscape Design practice and stylish B&B.

Bruges is a fantastically beautiful old town — a Flemish Venice with quiet canals, old cathedrals and Renaissance masterpieces. The College of Europe, the main incubator of future servants for the different European Union institutions, is situated here. On the streets, aside from tourists, one will see far less non-European faces than in the average European city. Perhaps the most apt symbol for contemporary Europe are the famously peaceful and picturesque béguinage in Bruges, which are home to women, mostly elderly ones, who spend time in self-reflection without being disturbed by the outside world. In the centre, close to the historical Markt and Burg square, 13 architects curated this walled courtyard of a neo-classical building dated from the Dutch period early 19th century. They used Flemish bricks for the flooring and positioned two large Nordic white A-vessels planted with Acer palmatum, Erigeron karvinskianus, Asplenium trichomanes and Polystichum setiferum.

The floating office for the Global Center on Adaptation, moored at the Rijnhaven in Rotterdam, is a building for a new era. Off-grid, CO²-neutral and it floats — instead of flooding — when water levels rise due to climate change.

Both fun and functional, it also forms an important element in a newly redeveloped harbour environment by providing public space on the water - and even a swimming pool. A context ideally suited to the seamless integration of Atelier Vierkant's beautiful clay sculptures. The water, the greenery, the clay and the wood form a beautiful poetic story that can be experienced by the many employees and visitors. The tall pots are set with Perzich ironwood (Parrotia persica). The trees start out fresh green in the spring and summer and then take on the colour of the clay in the autumn. A perfect, unprecedented synergy between clay, nature and wood is created.

The smaller pots scattered over the decking create spaces and shelter and are occupied by the evergreen Osmanthus x burkwoodii, sea buckthorn (Hippophae rhamnoides) and the Sand ryegrass (Leymus arenarius).
